Pre-Scheduled Citizens:

Colorado Water Plan Overview – Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy District (UGRWCD) Director Frank Kugel. UGRWCD General Manager Frank Kugel and Gunnison Basin Roundtable member George Sibley came forward and addressed Council. Mr. Kugel passed out a summary sheet of the Gunnison Basin Water Plan and the new “Guide to the Upper Gunnison River” brochure. Mr. Kugel then discussed the following: the basin Sno-Tel stations are indicating the Gunnison Basin is at 100% or average snowpack and the forecast is good at this time; the local reservoirs have normal levels for this time of year and it looks to be an average good water year; the Gunnison Basin Roundtable meets monthly in Montrose and consists of 32 members; local members of the Roundtable include Rufus Wilderson, Michelle Pierce, Bill Nesbitt, George Sibley, John McClow, Ken Spann and himself; due to a significant “water gap” due to higher water demand than supply, predicted in the state by the year 2050, the Governor charged each of the 9 Water Roundtables in the state to develop individual IntraBasin Water Implementation Plans (BIP) and those plans will then be melded together into the state-wide Water Plan; the Gunnison BIP contains 9 priority goals with the top goal being the protection of existing water uses in the Gunnison Basin; all of the goals will be used to guide future internal development of water resources within the Basin into 2050; the City of Gunnison is in fairly good shape due to good aquifers, aquifer protection, senior water rights and good water delivery infrastructure; some Basin municipalities are not in good shape; and the Basin Water Roundtable members would like to hear comments on the BIP from local governmental entities and the public. Comments should be given by April 17th. Roundtable Board Member George Sibley then stated the state-wide plan is essentially driven by the water needs of the Front Range metro area. They have the largest shortfall projected by 2050. The Governor wants information on all water issues in the state since all of the basins are in the same situation. Councilor Riggs asked about the Colorado River Water Compact and Mr. Sibley stated that does play a part in the determination of available water in the Colorado River Basins. The State’s water has three main threats: from the Front Range; from the Yampa River Basin to the north; and from the Colorado River Compact. The Gunnison Basin needs to be aware of all of the threats. A short discussion ensued on the proposed goals and water infrastructure projects in the Basin. Mr. Sibley asked Council that he and Mr. Kugel come back to Council sometime in March to get input on the BIP from Council and to ask the public for more input as well. Council thanked Mr. Kugel and Mr. Sibley for their reports.
